

Accessible Communication & Feedback Notice

Date: October 3, 2022

At Queen's College of Business, Technology and Public Safety, we are committed to creating an inclusive environment where every individual feels welcomed, respected and fully independent.

As an educational institution, we firmly believe education should be fully accessible.

We want to inform our college community and the public that we have developed accessible communication and information channels. Whether you prefer an in-person or electronic experience, we have established various means of contact, which you can find below.

If you need any arrangements for accommodations while visiting our facilities, we encourage you to contact us in advance, and we will work together on any necessary adjustments and solutions.

For more information or questions, refer to the Contact Channels section below. Also, if you wish to see our goals to continue creating an accessible environment, visit our multi-year plan on our website.

We look forward to seeing you at Queen's College and working together to continue to create an inclusive and diverse environment where you can use our services and facilities with independence and dignity.
